Description

This advanced seminar will examine the ways that governing coalitions in American politics have aligned and re-aligned since the New Deal. How did the Republican Party take over the south and the Democratic Party take over the coasts? Why do we see such different politics in urban, suburban, and rural America? What trends in party alignment have we seen in the last 70 years, and what trends might we expect to see in the next 30? In particular, we will focus on the last 20 years of American politics, and will touch on a number of topics, including realignment theory, elections, political liberalism, the rise of modern conservatism, the politics of the south, polarization, extremism, partisanship, race, class, gender, religion, and others. Course Cap: 14

Prerequisite

An introductory course in political science (preferably Introduction to American Politics), and intermediate work in political science or American history, or permission of the instructor.

Course Requirements

Overview

Satisfactory completion of the course requires completion of the following:

1. Daily Participation and Reading. This is an advanced seminar taught at a graduate level. Informed class participation is required each week.

2. Discussion Questions. Submit discussion questions or points (broadly construed) to the class by 9 AM on the day of class. Please respond to the first e-mail sent out, so all responses appear in a thread, and if you are the first questioner, title your e-mail [MAR] Questions: Week X.
3. Reaction Papers. Each student will write a 3-5 page reaction paper three times during the semester. This paper will be submitted to the whole class by noon the Monday before class, and should be read by other students in the class. As you are writing your reaction papers, you may wish to think of some of the following questions:

- What is the primary argument of the readings for this week?
- How do these readings fit together? Do they agree? Disagree?
- How do these readings fit in with other readings from this class, or from other coursework you’ve taken?
- Do you buy what the author is selling? Why or why not?

4. Paper Presentation and Discussion Leadership. On the weeks you write a reaction paper, you will lead class discussion. Each day there will be between two and three papers, so each day will have multiple discussion leaders.

5. Realigning Election Report. Research and report on a theoretical realigning election in America’s past (realigning elections to choose from include 1800, 1828, 1860, 1896, 1932, 1968, 1980, 1994, and 2008.) Reports include both a paper, identifying the strengths and weaknesses of that elections claim to be realigning, as well as a presentation to the class on the election itself.

6. Academic Book Review and Presentation. Read and analyze a scholarly book on modern American politics and/or partisanship. Present the argument of the book and critique the authors position. What does this book add to our understanding of the contemporary political alignment in the United States? What does it suggest the future holds for the Democrats, Republicans, liberalism, and conservatism? Should we have read this book in class? Books need to be selected from a list provided by the professor or approved by the professor as having appropriate academic merit.

7. Prognostication. A brief assignment at the end of class with predictions of party alignment in the forthcoming 2020 election, 2022, 2024, and 2036, as well as predictions on the 2020 primary season throughout the semester.

Course Expectations

COURSE POLICIES

Etiquette: Course participants must be courteous to the professor and fellow students. Attend class on time, listen to fellow students when they talk, and disagree (or agree) with others’ arguments professionally. Keep cell phones silenced and out of sight.

Computation and Technology: Laptops are required to be closed and left out of sight. Alternate accommodations, if necessary, can be made in the case of documented necessity through New College’s Student Disability Services office (SDS).¹

Office Hours: I encourage you to stop by my office hours at any point if you have questions about the course, the readings, school, etc. In addition to formal office hours, I have an open-door policy: if the door is open, you are welcome to come in. If you want to be sure you can speak with me, setting up an appointment beforehand at jackreilly.com/appointments is always a good idea.

¹Tablets are acceptable to use to reference readings so long as they will not distract you from seminar discussion. Generally, this means that, at minimum, any network connectivity is turned off, notifications are muted/silenced/paused, and you commit to utilizing apps solely dedicated to reading. If you would like to use a tablet for this purpose in class, see me at the end of the first class period.
E-mail: Students can generally expect a response to all e-mails within 48 hours, excepting weekends. I’m happy to answer any questions over e-mail that require less than a paragraph in response. Questions that require more than a short paragraph in response should be addressed in person.

A NOTE ON WRITING

Clear writing and argumentation is a critical element to success in this class. I strongly recommend exploring the options for writing (and revising!) assistance at the Writing Resource Center. You can schedule an appointment through the writing center here: https://ncf.mywconline.com

NEW COLLEGE POLICY STATEMENTS

Students with Disabilities: Any student who, because of a documented disability, may require special arrangements and/or accommodations, should contact the instructor as soon as possible to make necessary arrangements. Students must present appropriate verification from Student Disability Services during the instructor’s office hours. Please note that instructors are NOT permitted to provide classroom accommodations to a student until appropriate verification from Student Disability Services has been provided. For additional information, please visit Student Disability Services in HCL 3 and/or email disabilityservices@ncf.edu.

Religious Observance: No student shall be compelled to attend class or sit for an examination at a day or time when s/he would normally be engaged in religious observance or on a day or time prohibited by his or her religious belief. Students are expected to notify their instructors if they intend to be absent for a class or announced examination, in accordance with the policy, prior to the scheduled meeting.
